Pucksters Meet Blues Tonight

Intercollegiate Title at Stake On Forum Ice

Revenge Sought By Red Sextet Against Varsity

By MARVIN SHILLER
Like Belshazzar of old David Campbell, smiling mentor of the McGill Redmen, has seen the writing on the wall. However this time the script does not warn of a coming evil as the Daily's special linguists have translated the message as "Beat Toronto." There is only one thing asked by the players to help them on to victory is a large and noisy crowd that will fill Gorman's Gorgeous Garret, (Forum to you) to the rafters.

When the high flying Redmen (Ed. Note these are not the same ones that were described last year) step on the ice tonight they will fully realize that they must cop this one in order to remain in the championship hunt. If we win Toronto will have to clip the U. of M. Carabins to force a tie for the top slot.

ACTION EXPECTED

If tonight's contest is a carbon copy of previous McGill do or die battles, all and sundry will be in for an hour of thrills, spills (Doug Heron does our bodychecking you know) and flashing blades, to calm the average student's nerves. The Red and White Society has arranged for a post-game dance to be held at the gym with the Westernaires providing the music. Proceeds of this Shindig go to the War Memorial campaign.

STANDS PAT

Coach Campbell intends to stick to the lineup that has brought victory to the old Alma Mater on ten occasions. This means that Lanky Jack Gelineau will be between that old invention of Boston's Art Ross commonly called the cordage. Dick Currie will be held in reserve. To give Gelineau the protection that he would like to become accustomed to, four stalwart Redmen will be our blue-line brigadiers. The first pair includes smooth "Goose" Gosselin and heady Bob Brodriek, captain of the McGill sextet. Supporting them are bouncer Dbug Heron and flashy Cy Beigler.

The forward lines are those two well-known trios who go under the monikers of SHH and POP. The former is represented by the ever-dangerous Hale brothers, Tommy and George, and sure-shot Reg Sinclair. The other threesome includes Frank Carlin's babies, blond Jim O'Connor and slick Danny Porteous with Johnny-on-the-spot Peirson.

CUP WIRES

University of Manitoba: Lynn Watt, senior science student, has been elected President of the Manitoba Student Union for the coming year. He beat his opponent, Dave McQueen, Editor of The Manitoban, by 169 votes, Three thousand votes were cast.

Results of the question voted on at the same time show that Manitoban students are in favor of the Fort Garry site, outside the city of Winnipeg, as a permanent site for their campus. Another question showed that students of all faculties favor a proposed drive for a stadium and a student's Union Building by a vote of 2394 to 244.

University of Toronto: There is a possibility that the proposed International House may be amalgamated with a Coeducational Administrative Centre planned by the Student's Executive Council in conjunction with the Alumni Federation.

Snapshot Section To Be Increased In 'Old McGill'

Today Is Deadline
For Campus Life
Camera Contest

There will be 20 extra pages of candid snapshots this year in "Old McGill 46" announced Colin J. Campbell, Editor in Chief of the publication. These will illustrate all phases of campus life from action sport pictures to informal snapshots of clubs and fraternities.

The Editor stated that to fill the extra 20 pages, many more snaps will be needed. This year the section is being arranged in the form of a Campus Diary, depicting events in a chronological order.

The Campus Life Contest, with prizes amounting to $50 for the best prints, ends today but the board stressed that any snaps handed in within a few days will be accepted for publication, although they cannot be considered for the prizes after today. The prizes will be divided into two awards of $15 and four of $5.

Various sections of the Annual either have closed or are closing within a week. Miss Fyles, Clubs and Societies Editor, suggested that clubs which have not yet handed in a write-up should do so as soon as possible.

The order lists for the Annual will be coming down shortly in order to advise the printer of the number of books needed, it was stated by the board. Old McGill will appear around the end of April.

Discrimination Topic of Talk

Stewart, M.P.
Political Talk
Will Address

Alistair Stewart, M.P., will be the guest speaker at an open meeting of the McGill Political Science Club to be held in the Union at 8.15 p.m. on Thursday, March 21. He will speak on "Racial Discrimination in Canada and Citizenship in General."

Mr. Stewart, according to one of the members of the executive, should, because of his varied past experience, deliver an interesting and well informed address. He is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh and is by profession a chartered accountant. Prior to his election to the House of Commons, he was a commentator on International Affairs for the CBC. He represents Winnipeg North in the House.

It will be remembered that there was a story in The Daily earlier in the year recording a speech Mr. Stewart made at a meeting at the University of Toronto. At that time he said that racial discrimination existed at McGill, Toronto, and Manitoba, particularly in the medical faculties.

Mr. Stewart's latest appointment brought him to Washington to testify before the Anglo-American Enquiry on Palestine. It must be remembered that this is an open meeting and is open to the entire student body.

Thornton Wilder's Play "Our Town" To Be Presented

English Students
In Drama Courses
Selected For Cast

"Our Town" will be presented in Moyse Hall tonight by English 13 and 22 under the direction of Elmer Hall. The play, written by Thornton Wilder, is a Pulitzer prize winner.

The cast has been chosen solely from the two English drama courses and includes John Drescher as acting stage manager, Phyllis Schechter as Emily and Leo Ciceri as George in the leading roles. The other parts are played by Myrna Kenyon, Ann Lindsay, Quentin Brown, Arthur Garmaise, Betsy Hay, Margaret Williamson, Frank Russell, Gordon Barrington, Bill Osterman, John Cosgrove, Audrey Wirth, Ruth Block, Chester Butterfield and Collin Fraser.

The stage crew is made up of students who are handling all the technical details which include lighting under the direction of the university electrician, settings, sound effects, costumes and make-up. The crew works under the stage management of John Cunningham, a student of English 22.

Tickets are priced at $1.00 and all seats are reserved. Although the house is almost sold out there are still a few seats left which may be obtained from Mr. Hall in his office in the Arts Building. The performance is scheduled to get under way at 8:30 sharp.

Engineer debate has been postponed till Tuesday March 5 and will not be held today.

For President of Students' Society

Jon Ballon

The clash of some selfish groups on the McGill Campus has aroused an unhealthy and antagonistic air, one which runs counter to the general interest of the student body. I am the representative of no particular faction, and if I am elected organized groups will have their place on this campus but will not be permitted to dominate it.

Since the President of the Students' Society is responsible for every aspect of campus life, it is vital that he should have a wide and varied experience, for indeed, the best promise a candidate can make for the future is his record in the past.

This record should show: (a) A well-rounded interest in all phases of student life, as evidenced by his consistent and active participation in the executive, academic, athletic, social and cultural program of the university; (b) An insight into and an appreciation of student problems which can only be developed by working with varied campus groups and organizations; (c) The ability and time to cope effectively with these problems. My past activities are presented below for your consideration.

Activities:

Chairman, Veterans' Reception, January; Chairman, Freshman Reception, September; Secretary, McGill Union; Arts and Science Rep.

Donald A. Ross

First I should like to thank those who nominated me. If elected I pledge myself to do my utmost for the welfare of the Students' Society and to prove myself worthy of their trust.

During the past year there has been a great deal of activity on the campus. The number of veterans returning to college next year will swell our enrollment to an all time high and the coming session should see an unprecedented interest in extra-curricular affairs.

I am fully in favour of political clubs on the campus as long as they live up to the ideals of their original inception, the discussion of their various political ideologies.

The Mock Parliament provides a medium for the discussion of national questions but, I feel that there should be another medium for the discussion of current affairs and I should like to see a Student's Forum set up next year. This Student's Forum would also be run by the Debating Union and meetings could be called by 25 students. The Debating Union could arrange for speakers, to express their views and the meeting could then be thrown open for discussion from the floor. This would leave the Student's Society

GENERAL:

The President of the Students' Society must ensure that actions taken on behalf of the student body truly represent student opinion. At all times student policy should be based on the widest participation, to avoid the danger of any minority exerting undue influence on the Students' Executive Council. Only in this way can the requisites of representative government be fulfilled.

During these post-war years, the President should exert his influence to strengthen the bonds of good fellowship between veteran and non-veteran—all students of the same university with common problems and interests.

It is not suggested that the following covers the whole range of student activity. I will always be receptive to other suggestions which are in the interest of the student body as a whole.

PROPOSALS:

1. The problem of summer employment and employment after graduation is one which will become increasingly difficult. The Students' Employment Bureau and Uni-Vet, both doing splendid jobs, are handicapped through lack of staff. I propose that all those who are tackling the problem should coordinate their efforts on the basis

WORLD EVENTS

France: The French-Spanish border was closed officially at midnight Thursday night by French military authorities in France's protest against the Falangist regime of generalissimo Franco an Associated Press dispatch reports.

Ottawa: More seats for Quebec in the House of Commons and less for Ontario is reported as likely to be the result of redistribution of federal representation which is to be attempted in the coming session according to present indications.

Philadelphia: Police on horseback, motorcycles and riding in patrol cars today routed 3,000 Congress of Industrial Organizations strikers and sympathizers from the vicinity of a General Electric Company plant in a club-swinging melee that lasted a half-hour an Associated Press dispatch reports.

For President of Women's Union

Eleanor Baxter

I am grateful for this opportunity of speaking to you, first, because I can thank all those who nominated me, and second, because, I can tell you about my attitude toward this position.

Women have gained a vital place in this post-war world. During the war they increased their activity in almost every field and the women of McGill have kept pace with this progress. Many joined the services; many worked hard at a great variety of jobs, here at college; and all, whether they have been away or not, have acquired new energies for peacetime life.

This means that the women of the campus are a more useful and important group than ever before. We need and deserve better athletic and social facilities. The Women's Union should be more than a name; it should be a place. The value of an integrated body of women students can be inestimable both to themselves and to the campus generally. I feel that a Women's Union building is the surest way of maintaining such a group.

If elected, I would have a specific aim and a general one. The first is to see concrete plans laid for a centre for the Women's Union and the second is to give all my energy to satisfying the needs of the women on this campus.

Heddie Brown

Before presenting my platform I would first like to thank those who nominated me for the position of president of the Women's Union.

The position of women is becoming increasingly important on the campus. The recent changes in the Students' Society Constitution, particularly with reference to women becoming members of undergraduate societies, proves this fact. Through a strongly organized Women's Union working in the closest possible co-operation with these undergraduate societies, our position on the campus will become more consolidated.

Such consolidation and co-operation can be accomplished in only one manner—by more publicity for women's activities. This year has seen an increase in publicity for women through the aid of the Women's News Editor on the Daily. Greater publicity serves not only to bring the women students together, but also to emphasize the fact that McGill is truly a co-educational university.

In the past the Women's Union has done its utmost to welcome all women returning from the services and to make them feel a part of McGill—this is a policy which I feel should be continued.

Tradition must be maintained but

Barbara Jackson

This has been an eventful year at McGill and one which has seen women taking an increasingly important part on the campus. If elected, I would carry out the established duties of this office to the best of my ability and would also try to bring in the improvements considered necessary. I realize that problems will arise which cannot be anticipated now; in these cases I will always try to carry out your wishes. I feel I would have sufficient time. I have had executive experience previously, and more recently with the Veterans' Society, and as I would work to maintain a close contact between the executive and the women students. As your representative to the Students' Executive Council, I would support a vigorous and representative student government.

The greatest part of the work of the Women's Union is to support and encourage social functions, clubs, athletics and cultural activities. There are, however, a few points which I would particularly like to stress.

—Establishment of a co-op house for ex-service women.

—Improved Union facilities.

While working for a new, large co-educational Union building, I realize the difficulties and in the

Vincent I. Goring

To be a good president of the Union is to perform one of the hardest jobs on the Campus. The facilities of the Union are admittedly inadequate to serve as the main centre of student activities on the Campus. If elected I pledge myself to insure that these facilities are used to the best advantage and all possible means employed to improve and extend them.

The following are some immediate steps that can be taken: Lowering Cafeteria Prices: The University of Montreal serves excellent meals in its cafeteria for 34 cents while we have to pay 45 cents. Since the Union exists to provide these facilities more cheaply than may be provided outside, I shall endeavour to lower the cost of meals to a minimum without impairing their quality. This, I am convinced, is quite possible.

Renovation of the Union: The Union today is in a deplorable condition considering that it is intended to serve 4000 students. The ballroom is drab, dreary, and cold and fit for neither Student Society meeting nor dances. It needs renovation and improvement and cries out for the installation of a public address system. The basement floor is dilapidated and requires reconconditioning.

Improvement of Facilities: Certain steps can be taken immediately

Robert C. Pratt

Having served on the Union House Committee this year as Vice-President, I see immediate need for action on certain points.

QUESTION OF A NEW UNION

Any loose promise of a new Union is of course ridiculous. However if elected I shall consider it my most important task to successfully complete the work undertaken by the Union Expansion Committee of which I have been a member. Strong representation must be made to the proper University authorities in order that the urgency of the situation be recognized in the proper circles. If however the Needs Committee decide that due to other commitments the University cannot as yet undertake as large a project as a new Union the President of the Union must press for extension of the present facilities. Such extension might be two-fold:

1) Expansion of the ground floor back to the lane (the land involved in this expansion being already held by the University). This would solve the impossible congestion of the cafeteria and grill room be materially eased.

2) Rational reorganization of the basement to provide more satisfactory meeting and cloak room facilities.

David L. Townsend

The Presidency of the McGill Union is a responsible position, and requires constant attention. Should I be elected to that position, I will fulfil the trust of those who nominated and supported me.

The function of the President may be divided into three different and distinct roles. They are: representing the McGill Union on the Students' Council, acting as a member of the Dates Committee, and administering and supervising the McGill Union Building. Each in its own part requires experience and insight, gained only through active participation in campus activities.

I do not believe in making elaborate pre-election promises. But, I do say that the present work of the Union Expansion Committee will be continued and augmented as much as possible in order that present facilities may be enlarged. Furthermore, all problems relating to the rearrangement of space to enable larger student participation in the Union will be dealt with, and any criticism of Union House policy, meals, or service will have my careful attention and consideration.

The President of the Union is a member of the Students' Council and has an important part in decisions affecting campus organization and policy. I have impartial

Election Meeting

(Ed. Note: This editorial is reprinted from The Daily of March 1, 1944. Its timeliness, considering tonight's meeting, makes it as pointed now as it was then.)

This afternoon at 5.15 p.m. the candidates in Tuesday's election will present their platforms before the student body. Those running for the presidency of the Students' Society, and of the McGill Union will speak, while the other male candidates will be introduced to the students but will not address them.

The turnout at the meeting will be one of its most interesting features, since it will be a fairly reliable indication of the interest of the students in the election, and indirectly an indication of the amount of student spirit on the campus.

We have stressed the importance of reading the platforms of the nominees, and of attending the meeting, in a previous editorial, but we will run the risk of being called repetitious to repeat these views. If a student is to cast an intelligent vote, he must have a knowledge of the aims of the candidates, their appearance, and their ability before a critical audience. These are just a few of the qualities required of any campus leader. Determination, fairness, and good judgment are a few of the others. These will not be gleaned from the careful perusal of a platform, but should be indicated to a greater or lesser extent in the five minute speeches of the nominees.

Two of the men who speak are those who will be charged with the conduct of student affairs next session. They will exercise a great deal of influence on the Students' Executive Council, which is charged with the equitable distribution of student fees among the various activities on the campus. They will, above all, be the representatives of the student body to the general public, to the administration, and to the other universities. For these reasons they must be good men, with experience, enthusiasm, ideas, and personality.

The only method ensuring that those elected are the best the student body can offer is to read their platforms, listen to them speak, find out what they have done and what facts can be offered by others as to their ability.

R.V.C. Exhibition

Moderns Visit McGill

By DUSTY VINEBERG

Dealing with ideas in art, rather than with its chronology, "What is Modern Art" is the title of the third in a series of art exhibitions sponsored by the Women's Union. Coming to McGill on loan from the Museum of Modern Art in New York, it opened in the R.V.C. Common Room yesterday, and will remain on display until March 8. Comprising 40 reproductions of well known modern paintings, it introduces some aspects of the painting of Europe and America during the past 75 years. It is refreshing and comprehension-provoking in its grouping, for the usual formidable division into THE GREAT and the minor painters has been ignored in favor of an estimation of the growth of ideas.

Bonnard painted many breakfast scenes like the one in the exhibition. Several used a method called pointillism, a system of dots. He worked flat on his stomach suspended over his canvas by a series of ladders, and painted far into the night. His mother worried about him, and he justified his fear by dying at the age of 32. Cezanne worked in lonely but magnificent isolation. Piet Mondrian, who represents the abstract painters, often spent months correcting the breadth of one of his lines by a fraction of an inch.

Gauguin deserted his wife and fashionable London for a primitive life in the South Seas. Matisse, a crippled old man of 80, painted in France throughout this war—"What I dream of is an art of balance, of purity and serenity, devoid of troubling subject matter..." Von Gogh was a tragic figure of genius, half mad, half sane. The fabled Salvador Dali once remarked that he was "surprised that when he entered a restaurant and ordered boiled lobster, that they didn't serve him cooked telephone." George Rouault was apprenticed to a stained-glass worker in his youth, and hence his jewel-bright canvases. Grant Wood caused a furor with his "Daughters of the American Revolution", and another painting, "American Gothic", which everyone objected to because truth was, as usual, uncomfortable.

And there they are, the galaxy of brilliant moderns. The exhibition is proof of the theory that the artist, in his aims, dreams and analyses, heralds the change that is the only permanent feature of life and art.

West Dealer. East-West Vulnerable.

The Bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 Heart	3 Clubs	4 Spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of Spades.

Today's hand was played a number of years ago in a World Olympic Bridge Tournament and is representative of freak distribution. I reproduce this oddity because I consider it a good double-dummy hand, although the reasoning behind East's managing of the hand is sound. Can you see the play East makes in order to keep his losers to only three?

Most players sitting in West's position would find it difficult not to show Diamonds after partner's Spade bid, but should refrain from doing so realizing the danger of further experiment on freaks of this type. Whether South doubles or not is immaterial.

North shows out on the opening lead of a trump, and East wins. Declarer now sees that the hand can be made if South has no clubs and both red aces. It is almost a certainty that he is void in clubs, because he failed to open the suit, although it was bid strongly (really a shut-out) by his partner, and he holds five little trumps. On this chance East takes out four rounds of trumps, and then throws South in with the deuce of Spades. South can now cash his two aces unhampered, for East will simply discard clubs, and South will then have to give dummy the lead with either or both red suits established.

The reasoning is the same as South opens a heart or a diamond. By so doing he immediately places himself with one red ace, and the probability of a club void, on failure to open one. Then, working on the assumption South holds the other red ace, the plays proceeds in an identical manner.

ly-increased cloakroom space—a regular and ample supply of periodicals protected by permanent hard covers for the reading room—better provision for bridge players.

The best time to make these improvements is during the coming summer months. I believe the only permanent solution is a new and larger building, which is obviously needed and which I am prepared to work for. However, until this can be realized the above program will go far towards improving the utility of our present Union.

Further as a member of the S.E.C. I pledge myself: (a) to take a special interest in the Student Employment Service, from the viewpoint of jobs most suited to each student course, (b) to represent Your Ideas on the Council (c) to help awaken student interest in democratic student self-government.

Administration of the Union
In the day to day administration lies the most important function of the President. My past experience on the Union House Committee will aid in doing this administrative work. Some of the changes and additions I favour are as follows:

1) Report of all meetings of the Union House Committee should be carried in The Daily in order that the student body can follow the work of the elected representatives.
2) Purchase of a P.A. system to be used in the ballroom and to be made available for all clubs and societies.

3) Continuation of the social functions sponsored by the committee.

Other Aspects of the Position

The most important of the other functions is the position on the Students' Executive Council held by the President. If elected, I shall endeavour to act with vigour on this body so that it may become re-instated once more to its proper position in the eyes of the student body.

views regarding any campus club or group, and as a member of the Council, can discuss undergraduate activities without a biased opinion.

Through past activities, I have come in close contact with the Dates Committee, and realize the importance of being a member. I shall do my utmost to co-operate to the fullest extent with all campus clubs.

Finally, let me say, that since the President's position requires a broad outlook, combined with previous campus experience, and past activities are an adequate indicator of a candidate's capabilities.

not at the expense of progress. Any women's clubs and societies may rest assured that they will have the support of the Women's Union for any new program that will be a benefit to the women as a whole.

In closing I would like to say that to undertake this post successfully, previous executive experience is desirable. Furthermore, to understand fully problems which are bound to arise this experience should not be limited to one field.

Badminton and Squash Tournaments Featured by Co-ed Competitors

Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. in the Currie Gym will see the inauguration of yet one more type of intercollegiate sport to start up after the war. A strong team from Varsity is coming down to play our McGill team. Toronto have had squash courts at Hart House for many years, and have been fortunate enough to obtain a steady stream of players from Ontario Schools such as Trinity College School, Ridley and Upper Canada College.

However, McGill, who have only had courts for five years, have some experienced players to draw from. Pete Landry played number ten out of fifteen on the Canadian Latham Cup team this year. Bill Colquhoun, who has been out at Dawson this year, has a good background of squash played overseas, besides having represented Montreal on some occasions. In a game where tournament experience is invaluable, the rest of McGill's players such as Stairs, Culver and Farlinger have had ample opportunity this year to gain that much-needed experience.

"B" TOURNAMENT

The Quebec Singles "B" tournament, a tournament where the top 20 players in the province are eliminated from play, is still in motion up at the Currie Gym. In the quarter finals yesterday, McGill's remaining contestant suffered a defeat at the hands of Clary Booth, the man with the lightning serve. In the field of Montreal sports Clary Booth made a name for himself long ago. To see him step into the court today through the Debating Union and N.F.C.U.S. committees.

—Enlargement of Freshmen Reception Committee with consideration to restoring the "Big Sister" programme.
—Arrangements for the R.V.C. Library to be opened during noon hours.

—Full support for the M.W.S.A.A. and a comprehensive programme to ensure the opportunity for all who wish to participate in some physical activity.

In conclusion I would like to thank all those who nominated me, and pledge myself, if elected, to carry out the above programme in your interests.

BARBARA E. JACKSON.

"Now," asked the lecturer, "is there any man in this room who would let his wife be slandered and say nothing? If so, stand up." A meek little man rose to his feet.

The lecturer glared at him. "Do you mean to say you would let your wife be slandered and say nothing about it?" she cried. "Oh, I'm sorry," he apologized. "I thought you said slandered."

'Y' Edge Redmen By 42-41 Count In Close Tussle

A lapse early in the second half and the fact that they were only able to net eleven out of twenty-seven free throws proved to be the McGill senior cagers undoing last night as they dropped the Dodd's Cup contest to the Y.M.H.A. quintet by a 42-41 count.

The Redmen moved into an early lead and maintained a small margin at half time. However, when the time came to play the second half, it seemed as if there was a new McGill team on the floor, as everyone seemed to have lost their spark. The "Y" quickly took advantage of the situation and with five minutes to go, led by 12 points. At this point the Red second-stringers surprised everyone as they put on a stiff rally which fell one point short of the "Y" total.

Lanky Mel Prupas and gangling Murray Waxman were the big guns for Moe Abramowitz's five. Prupas showed all around scoring punch while Waxman was particularly adept at the corner throws. For the Redmen, Lou Davies' defence duo, Ken Hoyle and Pete Finlay led the scroving when they swished the ordage regularly from a distance.

McGill could have easily copied the Dodds mug had they not lapsed in the usually fatal second half, and if they were ready to take advantage of the winner's generosity with the free throws.

This does not end the cage season for the Redmen even though there are no more scheduled games for them in Montreal. The squad leaves for Kingston tomorrow morning where they face the hapless Gaels tomorrow night. It will be remembered that McGill defeated them here last week by a 36-20 count in a game where the visitors had very little, if anything, to show. With the Redmen preping for the contest with last night's game against the powerful "Y" Blues, the Gaels should find themselves up against a keyed up squad sporty the famed red and white jerseys.

The Redmen will be starting with the usual five which includes Ron Bower, George Davidson, Dave Greenburg, Pete Finlay and Ken Hoyle while Roth, Shacter and Weisberg will in all probability be carried in reserve. The Queen's squad is at full strength but the only man who rates watching is the captain Big Bill Devitt who put on a one man show last week.

Tomorrow's game marks the end of a fairly successful cage season for the McGill hoopers. Under the guidance of likeable Lou Da-

McGill Swimmers In Quest of Title At Kingston Meet

Intercollegiate Natators Plan Extensive Show For Weekend Program

The McGill natators are finally leaving on their big trip of the season. This time, its to Kingston, Ontario where they will do battle with representative squads from many Canadian universities for the Intercollegiate swimming title. Coach Vic Curran will lead his charges to the meet with plenty of practice under their belts; having competed with many American colleges and also, teams from Montreal and district.

Their show last week against Williams college, although belittled by the performance put on by their competitors, satisfied the coach, and he has every confidence that his squad will cop the laurels at Kingston, this weekend. The team will be at full strength for the meet, except for Ernie Taylor, whose absence will be keenly felt by the rest of the squad. Ernie is still recovering from an injury sustained in last week's meet at Williamstown, by falling glass.

This weekend the M.O.C. have two trips planned, one long tour about 12 miles and the other short, about 10 miles. Starting from Mount Rolland, the long tour will go to Lac Violin and on to Ogilvy's Lake while the short tour will go straight to Ogilvy's Lake from the same starting point. After a lunch on the trail both tours will lead off along the Johannsen East to the O.C. House at Shawbridge, where supper will be served, a la M.O.C. As the long trip is for more experienced skiers, only those who are good at trail skiing should try to get to Lac Violin.

St. Johns Team Faces Ejection In Semi-finals

Steve Armstrong brings his high-flying Georgian cagers to St. Johns tonight to meet Dawson in the second game of a two-game total point series. Georgians took the first game last Saturday at the Currie Gymnasium by a 39-32 score, and will go on the floor tonight with a seven point lead.

WINNER ENTERS FINALS
The winner of this semi-final series will meet Cliff Melville's U. of M. squad in the Intermediate College section next week. The U. of M. boys showed an amazing form reversal, to defeat the league-leading McGill quintet by two points in a tough series last week. The Dawson-Georgian series was scheduled to have been over last week, but a snow storm prevented the Georgians from getting out to St. Johns.

The Georgians have come a long way since Coach Armstrong took over, and haven't lost a game since Christmas. Unless Jerry Leonard's charges can stop this winning streak, and win by at least four baskets, the Georgians will enter the finals next week.

SLOW WARM-UP
Of late, Dawson have taken about 15 minutes to warm up, and the Kaszas, Cousineau, Duford combination which led them undefeated through the first half of the schedule, has only started to show their form in the last canto of the game. At this time the Dawsonites are too far behind to catch up to their opponents.

Unless Leonards can snap the team out of this lethargy, the Taylor brothers and Copping will lead the Georgians into the finals in the intermediate cage play.

Dawson 'B' Hoopsters Withdraw from Play

Coach Tiggy Chalmers has announced the disbanding of the Dawson "B" cagers. The team was originally formed early in the winter to provide a pool for the "A" team. A league, previously organized for the squad failed to materialize and the boys were forced to rely on exhibition games for their excitement. Though more had been lined up, only three games came off-against the Dawson "A" team, Baron Byng High School, and Westmount High. Poor weather kept a number of games from being played, but excluding the game against the "A" team, the boys went through the season undefeated.

Tie for Intercollegiate Hockey Championship

Just what happens to the championship of the Intercollegiate loop if McGill beats Toronto (Ed. Note—Substitute "when" for "if") tonight at the Forum and the Blues trounce U of M next week is still a matter of conjecture.

If Ace Bailey's Blues drop tonight's contest and win next week's, they will wind up in a dead heat for first place with McGill. In that case, according to the Athletics Office, it will be up to the solons of the C.I.A.U. to decide what will happen. They may either have a play-off game called, or decide the issue on total goals. At any events, according to the usual informed sources, "They aren't very worried about it."

Looking back over past records there has never been a tie for the championship of the puck loop. Toronto copped the laurels last in '39-'40 after McGill had won continuously from '32-'33 until '38-'39. In all, Varsity has won 17 titles, McGill 12 and Queen's 5.

Badminton Briefs

By LEO LAFONTAINE
(Western Badminton Manager)

The coming badminton matches between McGill and Western have everything to delight a sports-writer's heart. Color, personal rivalry, intercollegiate rivalry, are all going to be here. Jack Muir came up to play in the M.A.A.A. invitation tournament in December. Muir rates among the top three singles players in Canada, and came here an odds-on favorite to win the tournament. However he ran into Stu Burris. When the match was over, Muir was beaten and Burris had made his name as a top-ranking contender. Muir won the Strathgovan Invitation tournament a few weeks ago and there is little doubt that he is preparing to avenge his defeat at the hands of Burris.

BADMINTON HEY-DAY
When badminton was in its hey-day before the war, Jack Barber from Woodstock was up and coming. When good badminton players were playing good badminton, Barber was beginning to throw his weight around. Today he is taking medicine at Western. To match Barber, McGill has Ron Dussault or Guy MacFarlane in the M.A.A.A. invitation tournament MacFarlane took me to three games, and I can say that I am not anxious to meet him again. Wednesday night, I played a few games with the McGill team and Dussault came so near taking my count, that I suddenly became tired and couldn't play him another game. Yes, the badminton is going to be good this year.

From a spectators view-point, the inauguration of intercollegiate badminton promises entertainment in full shares. For the fastest Intercollegiate game, played by colorful stars, spurred on by personal and intercollegiate rivalry, you can do no better than come out to watch the Intercollegiate badminton tournament on Saturday afternoon.

'Ace' Bailey and Crew Here at Full Strength

Coach "Ace" Bailey and his Varsity Blues arrived in Montreal last night, and he was pleased to announce that his squad was at full strength, for the puck fray to be held at the Forum tonight. He said that all the boys are keen about the match, but would not make a premature assertion as to the final outcome of the game. He did say this much: It was expected to be a good game, based on the results of last week's contest in Toronto. When asked about what happens in the event of a tie for first place in the intercollegiate loop, he admitted that he didn't know what would take place; and refrained from offering any suggestions.

McGILL MISSES IUDL TROPHY BY A SMALL MARGIN, WINS ONE DEBATE, LOSES OTHER

Debate at McGill
"And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."
Quoting from Isaiah, Brian Greenland led the St. Patrick's College debating team to victory as the resolution "Resolved that every Canadian youth should undergo one year of compulsory military training," was debated by a 2 to 1 decision in last night's final IUDL debate between McGill and St. Pat's.

Speakers for McGill upholding the affirmative were Jim Hemens and Conrad Shatner while Edgar Scully and Brian Freeland represented the visitors. Judges were Reverend Gordon H. Burgoyne, Mr. A. J. Lomas and Hon. L. Gendron, K.C. Mr. J. Dando chaired the meeting.

Opening the debate, Hemens emphasized that preparedness is the surest safeguard of peace and since military conscription is the sole democratic means of obtaining this force it was the surest safeguard of peace.
Scully maintained that compulsory military training would lead to militarism and would be a direct contradiction to the principles of the war just completed. Shatner responded by stating that militarism and regimentation are products of environment. "Military training for what is good is good. Military training for what is evil is evil."
Freeland averred that barrack room society will lead 17-year-old youths to "drinking, carousing, and sexual laxity." The debate ended with the rebuttal of Hemens who maintained that the negative claimed by their statements that servicemen were reprobates. Moreover, he felt that they had neglected the basic issues and had barely touched the fringe of the topic.

In the finals for the IUDL cup last night, McGill won one debate 2-1, and lost the other by the same score. Accordingly, the debate was decided by the percentages awarded by the judges to each team. Since McGill won by 50.20% in one case, and St. Pat's by 50.45%, the series was carried by 0.25%.

Debate at Ottawa
The McGill Debate team of Isadore Rosenfeld and Ted Huggesson won a 2-1 decision over the St. Patrick's College team of Edgar McNeeley and Frank Collingwood by a point total of 448.7 to 446.1 last night.
The debate was held at the Chateau Laurier before a crowd of 200 people. Pat Gillin was chairman of the meeting, with Redmond Quain, K.C., Judge Madden and Mr. G. J. McIlraith, M.P., acting as judges.

McNeeley opened the defence of the topic, "Resolved that every Canadian youth should undergo one year of compulsory military training is the best way of achieving national security."
Rosenfeld answered that military experience showed that a conscript army is useless in the face of such weapons as atomic bombs. Moreover, democratic principles are at stake.
Collingwood averred that youths would benefit physically and mentally from their experience. The advantage of military training lies in its preparing for emergencies.
Huggesson demonstrated convincingly that what Canada needs is not rest camps, as the affirmative advocated, but rather health and education programs.

PROGRAM
I pledge to work for the following points which I firmly believe are feasible:
Summer College Program:
The McGill Daily should be published—there should be an athletic and social program organized—and committees of the students should be elected empowered to spend students' Money as they see fit.
Dawson College:
Students are not getting full value for their $10.00 student fees.

Get your tickets at the Tuck Shop, The Med. Bldg. or from any Physio or just come along and buy them at the door, $2.00 a couple.

Much could and should be done to improve this poor state of affairs. For example, the old 35c Dawson movie admission charge and the 10c Dawson to St. John's bus fare could well be reduced by Council subsidies. Whatever the details, I firmly believe that intelligent and energetic action is needed, and you can be assured that I will provide the necessary initiative.

Athletics Organization:
To return to and to improve on the pre-war system of athletic organization, in which students participated actively in determining policy and budget. Greater expenditure could be made on equipment and coaches, and the general dissatisfaction of students in their athletics organization would largely disappear.

McGill Union:
A thorough investigation into the possibilities of enlarging and re-equipping the present Union, or of building a new one has been started. Experience on the Union House Committee has convinced me of the great need for improved facilities, and I feel confident that with energetic leadership good progress can be made.

Curriculum Committee:

meetings for questions of major importance which affect the campus as a whole.
Although I am extremely interested in current affairs I am not affiliated with any political club and do not believe that the President of the Student's Society should be. He should be strictly non-partisan so that he can speak for the whole student body.
I do not feel that the students have enough responsibility in the running of the athletic program. At present the Athletic Advisory Board is made up of student representatives, members of the Faculty and graduates, but, as its name implies, it acts in an advisory capacity only. I would like to see an Athletic Board set up which would consist of three students, three members of the Faculty and three graduates. It would have control of all the athletic funds and of the arrangement of the sports program. This system was in operation in the past and if such responsibility were placed on the shoulders of the students, more interest would be taken and, as a result, intercollegiate and intra-mural sports would be more successful.

I was one of the first veterans to return to the campus and their problems are mine. I have seen them grow from the original six to a group now numbered in thousands. I do not believe that they should band together as a group but rather assimilate themselves into the activities they favour and act as a body only when an issue arises which affects them directly as student veterans.

At present I am the Engineering Representative on the Student's Executive Council and I feel that my experience has given me a knowledge of student administration. I have had three years service in the Army both in Canada and overseas and the experience gained there will aid me to carry out the duties.

Along with these three stalwarts, there is Jerry Cooper of water polo fame, Van Wagner and Fineberg, the relay experts, and freestyle enthusiasts Fullerton, Quayle, Elder, Mingle and Hoffman. All of these boys were represented in the C.A.S.A. meet held last week, in which the McGill squad eked out a narrow win over this highly-touted aggregate; and showed that the competitions held earlier this year with other universities, was of a definite value insofar as superior experience is concerned. There remains little doubt that the McGill swimming team will do their best this weekend and with a stroke of luck, should bring home the bacon for the old Alma Mammy.
